Resolutions of Respect.

ODD FELLOWS HALL, Stanford Lodge No. 156, I. O. O. F., May 9, 1895.

WHEREAS, Death has entered our lodge and taken a beloved brother, W. E. McClary, therefore be it

RESOLVED, That in the death of Bro. McClary our lodge has lost a member who was ever ready and willing to do anything in his power for the good of the order, and was faithful in attendance.

2. That his example was worthy of emulation, inasmuch as his life was in every way consistent with Odd Fellowship and a Christian gentleman, being ever ready to speak a kind word to his fellowman, and by his excellent disposition continually disseminating sunshine into the lives of others, possessing every quality that goes to exalt, elevate and embellish all with whom he came in contact. Truly he was "a man to be revered and worthy of honor, known for his consummate prudence and most pronounced piety; noted for his devotion to duty—he being dead, his deeds yet remain."

3. That in the death of Bro. McClary the community has lost an exemplary citizen, the church an excellent member, the cause of education a zealous worker and the county a model superintendent.

4. That we deeply sympathize with his family, which he loved with almost matchless devotion, and the promotion of whose happiness was ever uppermost in his mind. His relatives in general can have the consolation of knowing that a grand and appropriate epitaph can be written on his tomb—"He lived to bless mankind."

5. That these resolutions be spread on minutes of the lodge, a copy sent to the bereaved family and that they be published in the INTERIOR JOURNAL.

JOE F. WATERS, Chmn.,
M. F. ELKIN,
C. H. HOLMES,

—George Delph and Miss Nettie Walla drove up from Casey yesterday and were married by Judge Davidson. They were accompanied by Milford Delph and Miss Maggie Walla.

—Rev. M. Ashby Jones, of Bardonia, brother of Rev. Carter Helm Jones, of Louisville, and Miss Ella May, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Turner, were quietly married at Kirksville Tuesday.

—Rev. F. S. Politt, of Frankfort, who formerly held the Methodist pastorate here, will be married the last of June to Mrs. Daisy Carlock, of the Normal department, of Berea College. Her home is in Bloomington, Ill. Mr. Politt's first wife was well-known here.

To the Democrats of Lincoln County.

I am a candidate to represent Lincoln county in the next Legislature of Kentucky, subject to the action of the Democratic party. I stand squarely upon the National Democratic platform. Endorse Cleveland and Carlisle. Am for James B. McCleary for U. S. Senator and in favor of Free Turnpike.

Respectfully,
M. F. NORTON.

—Steorage rates on ocean steamers between New York and Europe have been advanced from $10 to $15.

Dr. Brown left for Baltimore Sunday to attend the American Medical Association. He is president of the judicial council, which corresponds with the supreme judge of the U. S. Mrs. Geo. B. Cooper and children were visiting the Misses Cook.

—Animated by your Turnersville correspondent I will attempt to say a word for the good or evil of Hustonville. In the first place it has only about 600 inhabitants instead of 6,000 as many suppose. For this population and much of Casey county it has one National Bank with $50,000 capital and about $22,000 surplus. It pays a good dividend and never ceases to accommodate its customers during the hard times of '93. It was established some eight years ago. We have in town seven stores, two farther shops, two saloons paying a revenue of $310 each per year. A good public school and a College are our educational advantages. It is a corporated town of the 6th class, with daily mails Sunday excepted. The C. & S. R. R. is the closest. The town is noted especially for its beautiful women, knights of the goods box and a lovely situation; no one was ever known to go away and stay for life. Considering her all round she is a good little town and here's long life and a hard death to her!

A Pure Baking Powder.

A baking powder that can be depended upon to be free from lime and alum is a desideratum in these days of adulterated food. So far as can be judged from the official reports, the "Royal" seems to be the only one yet found by chemical analysis to be entirely without one or the other of these substances, and absolutely pure. This, it is shown, results from the exclusive use by its manufacturers of cream of tartar specially refined and prepared by patent processes which totally remove the tartrate of lime and other impurities. The cost of this chemically pure cream of tartar is much greater than any other, and it is used in no baking powder except the "Royal," the manufacturers of which control the patents under which it is refined.

Dr. Edward G. Love, formerly analytical chemist for the United States government, who made the analyses for the New York State Board of Health in their investigation of baking powders, and whose intimate knowledge of the ingredients of all those sold in this market enables him to speak authoritatively, says of the purity, wholesomeness and superior quality of the "Royal":

"I find the Royal Baking Powder composed of pure and wholesome ingredients. It is a cream of tartar powder, and does not contain either alum or phosphates, or other injurious substance."

Prof. Love's tests and the recent official tests by both the United States and Canadian governments, show the Royal Baking Powder to be superior to all others in strength and leavening power. It is not only the most economical in use, but makes the purest, finest flavored and most wholesome food.

No State has felt the hard times less than Kentucky. This is due to the great diversity of crops in that State. Kentucky is the leading grain State South of the Ohio, both in corn and wheat, and until the development of the Northwest was the leading grain State of the Union. It also produces 40 per cent. of the tobacco crop of the whole United States, and nearly half the hemp. It is said that all the products of the temperate zone can be raised profitably in Kentucky.—N. LIBERTY, CASEY COUNTY.

—A heavy rain fell here Monday evening raising the river very suddenly.

—Mr. John W. Whipp is talking of putting up a large two-story brick store-house.

—Mr. John F. McBeath, after a five years' absence—three years in Mississippi and two years in South-western Kentucky—is again among us shaking hands with his many friends. He looks the same as of old, save that he has somewhat gained in flesh. John is whole souled and genial and makes a host of friends wherever he goes.

—Mr. J. M. Stephens, of Mayfield, superintendent of all the brick work connected with the building of our new jail, came on some days ago and is now in active operations at his work. Mr. Stephens seems to thoroughly understand his work, is a gentleman of the old school, and his pleasant ways have won the good will of the people.

—Judge John M. Tilford took two days in the front part of the week to regulate matters among the descendants of Africa's dusky race. On Monday Neely Northcutt and James Lanier were brought before himself charged with boisterous conduct. The jury brought in a verdict of acquittal for Northcutt and fined Lanier $1 and costs. Lanier retaliated by getting out a warrant for Northcutt charging him with carrying concealed weapons. Northcutt was touched by the jury to the tune of $40 and 20 days in jail, whereupon his counsel, Judge Belden, made a motion, which was granted, for a new trial on the grounds of excessive verdict and insufficiency of evidence for conviction. The case will be tried again next Saturday. Ned Bowman was also tried on Tuesday for disturbing religious worship and acquitted.

BRODHEAD, ROCKCASTLE COUNTY.

—Miss Sadie Burger started last Saturday to her sister's, Mrs. Johnson, at Louisville.

—Bro. Pike will preach at Buckeye church in Garrard county next Saturday and Sunday.

—Bicycle riding is becoming to be all the go here with both sexes. Some of our ladies are as fine riders as ever straddled a wheel.

—Bro. C. A. Cox, a business drummer and very zealous Christian of Stanford, stopped here last week and he attended our prayer meeting and gave us a good talk on the subject of sanctification.

—Mrs. Wilmot gave an ice cream supper at her hotel last Saturday night, which was one of the many nice entertainments that has been giving in this place for some time. It was well attended and all present seemed to enjoy themselves.

—There were many of our citizens very much shocked on learning of the sudden death of our beloved friend and brother, W. F. McClary, of Stanford. Mr. N. M. Shumate, of this place, went down to attend his funeral. We always feel sad to have to give up such men as Bro. McClary, but we feel assured that the country's loss of such men will be heaven's gain, and another man rests in peace.

—We had one of the heaviest rain falls on the headwaters of Dix river last Sunday evening for many years, which resulted very disastrously to the creek lands, washing up a great deal of corn that had been recently planted and overflowing the land and washing away fencing, &c. It washed away fencing standing on hillsides and has almost ruined many of our farmers. Old men say they never have seen anything just like it.

—Mr. Will Newcomb, of Mt. Vernon, was in town Saturday evening and enjoyed the ice cream supper at the Wilnot Hotel. Mr. Samuel Myers, of Marietta, seemed to be enjoying the company of one of the Brodhead girls last Saturday evening. Miss Fannie Sparks, of Mt. Vernon, accompanied her father, Mr. J. W. Pike spent a few days with relatives at Marietta last week.

TO FORM A NEW STATE

SERIOUS PROPOSAL TO CREATE THE COMMONWEALTH OF "SUPERIOR."

Michigan, Minnesota and Wisconsin to contribute to its Territory—Would Be One of the Richest in the Union, Especially in Minerals.

It is seriously proposed to create a new state by taking a part of the three states of Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan, which will be known as the state of "Superior," or "The Mineral State." This idea is a modification of the new state plan so often repeated, and its creator is Captain Alex McDougall, the inventor of the whaleback.

Captain McDougall would cut out a territory bounded on the north by Canada, on the west by the Mississippi river, on the south by a line drawn from the Mississippi river along the southern boundary of the northern tier of Wisconsin counties and terminating at the extreme tip of the upper peninsula. Of course the eastern boundary line would lie in the lakes, but that is immaterial to the plan.

What is aimed at particularly is to place the three great iron ranges—the Vermillion, the Mesabi and the Gog-bioc—in one state, so that the interests of none of them could be injured by conflicting legislation and all might be treated from the same basis.

Should the new state, which would be the forty-fifth of the Union, be considered at all it would have the additional advantage, the captain thinks, of solving the difficulties of long standing between Duluth and Superior, for, both cities being in the same state, their interests would be in the main almost identical. At least there would be no state line to vex and complicate their relations.

Duluth and the northern part of Minnesota have no interests in common with the rest of the state. Wisconsin, it can truthfully be said, bears the same relation toward Superior and the northern portion of the state, and as for the upper peninsula it is not, either from a commercial or geographical point of view, a part of the state of Michigan.

The new state would be one of the richest in wealth in the Union. It would have more than 500 miles of water front and contain "the head of the lakes" harbor, which is the gateway for the trade and commerce of the entire northwestern country. "Superior," or "The Mineral State," would at once become one of the greatest states of the Union, it is firmly believed by its advocates.

Agitation of the subject will begin immediately throughout the three commonwealths involved, and the representatives in the several legislatures who come from the territory immediately involved will after their admission be secured in making political combinations in order to effect their purpose. The new state would be strongly Republican, a qualification which would secure it a respectful hearing from the present congress.—Chicago Times-Herald.

A Bowler Makes 300 In Ten Frames.

David Hoffman of the Berkeley Bowling club of Newark, N. J., made a score of 300 in ten frames with regulation pins on Harry Montgomery's alleys recently. He was engaged in practice with William Weingarth, who made 244, and Emanuel Lowenstein of the Chevalier club, who made 219. Montgomery says that it is the first time he has ever seen 300 made since the present standards have been established, and he has been in the bowling alley business since 1876.—New York Sun.

To Prevent Train Robbery.

The Southern Pacific is considering methods for preventing train robbery, but thus far no feasible plan has been found. It is thought the best would be to place the express car in the middle of the train, thus making it difficult to detach it from the remainder of the train.

Where the Trouble Lies.

FOR LOVELY WOMAN.

THAT CREATURE OF MENTAL UNCERTAINTY AND ACTIVITY.

Something New For a Waist—A Novelty In Blouses—Trimming For Cotton Dresses—New Developments In Bonnets. Material For Dresses.

Woman being a creature of changeable mind, it keeps the artists and designers in a continual state of mental activity to evolve something having new features, at least for every day in the year. It was not enough for them to bring out the Russian blouse and then rest upon their laurels. There must be something a little different, and so the queer "nor fish nor flesh" waists now offered as novelties. There is one which embodies the pointed waist, the heavily embroidered Spanish jacket and the Russian blouse effect all together. The waist has a pointed velvet belt of a rich dark blue, a velvet jacket almost covered with gold embroidery and a double plait hanging over in the approved fashion, with four dull gold buttons. The plait itself is of old gold armor. There are blue velvet ribbons carried around the arm sizes and tied in little bows upon the shoulders. The collar is embroidered stiffly with gold. The sleeves are of the deep naples blue point de soie, with cuffs of the old gold. The skirt is like the sleeves and is cut medium wide. The front seams are left open over a dark blue velvet inset, and this is heavily wrought with gold. There are 36 dull gold buttons on the skirt and buttonholes simulated with dark blue twist. Bat wing bows are set at the top. These insets are very pretty and afford a means of widening any skirt that is scarcely as large around the bottom as might be desired.

Another novelty in the blouse effect has a snug lining, over which is laid a waist of cheney silk, with a slight droop exactly in front, over the round belt. There are two straps laid like brooches from the front to the back over the shoulders. These are piped with emerald green silk. The general tone of the silk is pale pinks and greens. There is a stock of dark green velvet and a small double rosette at the belt on the left side. The skirt worn with this was of fancy striped taffeta in greens and russet reds over smoke gray. The skirt was plain, but exquisitely finished and graceful. The stylish young possessor of this pretty spring suit had a hat of dark green French clip, with half a dozen ostrich tips and an aigret showing above its enormous brim. On the left side there were three tiny bows, one of rose leaf pink and two of green. There was something deliciously springlike about this whole costume.

It is quite possible with the new fashion to transform a plain corsage into a Russian by means of the addition of looped straps. I remember a case where the waist was of olive green velvet and heliotrope satin duchess. The sleeves and lower portion of the waist were of the pale heliotrope, while the deep belt and yoke were of the velvet. On the front of the waist were fastened three straps of rich heliotrope satin, with an arabesque pattern of the velvet applique and set with an extremely narrow gold cord. One of the straps was simply doubled over and reached the belt. The other two had fancy gold and green passementerie ornaments at the head. Two bands were laid down the front of the skirt, and another one bordered the entire skirt, which was cut with a demi-train.

Cotton dresses are made and trimmed with quite as much care as woolen and silk ones, and they certainly pay for the trouble. One can tell at once whether a cotton gown is made for a lady who respects herself or not, and a really well made cotton dress is a pleasant thing to look at. There is a new linen brocade with here and there a thread of pure silk, which lightens it up wonderfully. This linen stuff will be much employed in the making of the shirtwaists which will soon be seen everywhere. One made of a dark blue linen was cut so as to show a white chemise front and white linen collar. There was the plaited blouse effect. There will soon be shown these shirt waists made of madras plaids and cotton chevrot; also the pretty cotton polaise. There will also be shown blouse waists for children with three box plaits down the front, edged with white or black soutache, according to the color of the blouse. Tulle ruffs, flax, pink and blue plaques used for this purpose. Nearly all of these will have a wide sailor collar, but the necks will be high. Skirts to match will be the rule. Bishop sleeves, with deep cuffs, are the only suitable ones with these. The same style of making will be followed in the linens, satins and other strong cotton goods.

There have been some new developments in hats destined for late spring. These are hats and bonnets, both made of very light wire frames, and are of lace, chiffon, silk, tissue, net and mull. These delicate materials will be puffed and shirred and made as light and airy as possible, and the fluff and lightness will be gathered and held with sparkling buckles, and occasionally some dainty and delicate flower, like velvet forget-me-not, bluet or perhaps a scarlet geranium. Whatever it is it will be pretty.

For more immediate wear there may be said to be three leading styles. The Napoleon shape, the Continental and the queer but cute little Dutch bonnets are their names. The Napoleon and Continental are very chic and stylish, but the close little bonnets that have flat tops and fussy little rosettes at the sides are most becoming. The Dutch bonnet, as it is called, is flat on the top and often has no trimmings at all beyond the rosettes. It is intended to set far back on the head, and for that reason it is much affected by those who wear their hair in the loose bandeaux. Some of these hats have the crown of shining straws, others a mass of spangles of different lusters. All of them are oddly and quaintly pretty. I will mention one more oddity in the way of hat trimming, and that is the bunch of emu feathers that one often sees standing up on one side. Some 20 years ago there was a rage for emu feathers for not only millinery, but for dress trimmings as well, and pretty muffs and collarettes were made of them.

There are fewer new dress materials displayed now than at any other time this season, still there are very many pretty designs of mohair figures. These mohairs and brillianthes are shown in all the brilliant tints of the season, and they are especially valuable for house gowns, as they are bright and showy and never catch dust. I have also seen some of these with flower designs and other patterns printed on. There are also many with woven figures.

The Cheney taffeta and gros de londres, plaid taffetas, silk crepon with poudour figures and corah cashmere are all extremely fine and elegant and are used for both waists and skirts—all but the plaid. There are some very dainty cotton homespun in dull and bright colors, and they will be employed for full gowns and waists. The Swiss belts in fancy stamped and perforated leather will be worn by young people with light gowns. Dotted swiss is a prime favorite. The smaller the dots the better. HENRIETTE ROUSSEAU.

A Practical Case For Playing Cards. That playing cards should be kept neat and clean, with smooth edges, is essential to the comfort of the game, whether it be whist, euchre or hearts. This little device can be trusted to help to that good end. It can be made with very little trouble and is really so attractive as to be an addition to the taste, besides serving its more prosaic use.

To make it select a piece of soft gray chamois skin, or if that be too quiet for your taste, any color you prefer. Cut a section a little wider than your cards are long and as long as four times their width, plus the exact depth of the pack when piled one upon the other.

Turn over at each end a piece the exact width of one card, so as to form two pockets of equal size. Cut from the chamois four strips, each as long as the pockets are deep and as wide as half the depth of the entire pack of cards. Leave one end of each straight and round the others slightly at each corner. Then, with extreme neatness, overhand one to each end of each pocket, so as to close the openings, letting the curved end form the back. When that is done, paint upon each pocket a heart, a club or any one of the symbols used. Close the case and paint a similar design on the outside. Then follow all the edges with a double line of black.

You will find the case a most complete and practical one, besides being a real economy, for it keeps the cards intact and in perfect condition. Slip half the pack into each pocket, then fold it, one over the other. No dust can enter. No cards can slip out. The case is ornamental and can be kept always within reach. A more complete trifle it is difficult to find, and from the testimony of an enthusiastic card player it would seem to fill a long felt want.

Cooking In Order.

More attention every year is given to cooking in our large cities. In New York there are several excellent cooking schools where ladies not only go themselves, but send their servants. A society has been formed this winter by some of the active workers in these schools to have depots, usually at the women's exchanges. There daily well cooked fancy dishes of all kinds can be had at moderate prices. If the goods continue to be as well prepared in the future as they have been thus far, there is no doubt as to the success of the project. And think of the relief to the inexperienced housekeeper with unprepared for guests to entertain!

LIQUID GOLD FEVER.

RAPID ADVANCE IN OIL HAS RENEWED EXCITEMENT IN WEST VIRGINIA.

The Future at Parkersburg—Story of the Finding of Petroleum—George Washington Knew of Its Existence—How Senator Camden Made His Fortune.

Among the natural resources of West Virginia petroleum has always been rated as third in importance, coal and timber taking precedence, but just at this time a superficial observer would conclude that there is nothing but oil in the state. This is the result of the liquid gold fever that has been occasioned by the sudden and rapid rise in the oil market.

Parkersburg being the center and distributing point of the West Virginia oilfield, it is the place to get the benefit of all the excitement. It reminds one of the days "before the war," when oil was first struck, and it almost equals the excitement in California over the discovery of gold.

Oil was first discovered in West Virginia and not in Pennsylvania. The Pennsylvania fields were the first to be developed, but the discovery belongs to West Virginia, and the largest oilfield now in the world is at Sistersville, about 50 miles above Parkersburg. In fact, the existence of natural gas, which is the twin sister of petroleum, was known to George Washington before the Revolution.

In 1775, in one of his surveying expeditions to the Kanawha valley, General Washington discovered the "Burning Spring." He did not understand the phenomena, but so well assured was he that it was some rich gift of nature designed for the use of man that he set apart and deeded to the public forever an acre of land near the Kanawha river, about eight miles above Charleston, on which was the great national wonder.

It was simply a hole in the ground, which filled with water when it rained and up through which issued a jet of gas, giving the water the appearance of boiling, and when lighted burned with a bright flame till blown out by the wind.

In 1845 Captain James Wilson struck a gas well while boring for salt water in the Kanawha valley.

The coal oil fever broke forth in all its fury early in 1861, when oil was discovered at the Burning Springs above Parkersburg. It was then that fortunes were made and lost in a single day.

In that field oil was found at a depth of from 90 to 300 feet, and in a few weeks the whole field was punctured like a pepper box.

It was in the oil excitement of 1861 that Senator Camden, who is now classed among the wealthiest of America's millionaires, got his start. At that time he was a comparatively young man, with a small law practice in a country town up in the interior of the state. Sitting in his room one evening looking over the daily papers, he suddenly turned to his wife with the remark, "Ann, my fortune is made."

When she looked for an explanation, he said: "I see here in the paper that oil has been discovered on the Little Kanawha. I am going up there to try my hand at developing the field." The next morning he borrowed all the money that his collateral and the influence of friends could scrape together for him and then struck out for the Burning spring. In two weeks he had made enough to pay back his borrowed capital, and from that day to this there has not been a check in the progress of his marvelous business career.

The improvement in the method of refining has advanced with the progress of the industry, and discoveries have been made whereby all the refuse matter that was formerly thrown away is now converted into useful articles of commerce. It is in this way that the refined oil has been reduced in price from 40 cents a gallon to 10 cents and still leaves a good profit to the refiners.

Most of the wells that have been lately shot in the area of the oil basin have been good producers, and there is now a daily output of from 12,000 to 15,000 barrels.

Yet experienced oil speculators say that the present rise in oil is not altogether born of speculation, but is partially due to legitimate causes. The supply has fallen below the demand, and the speculators have only taken advantage of the actual condition to inaugurate an era of gambling.

The Russian oilfield is diminishing its supply every year, with no prospect of new discoveries. Many of the American fields have been totally exhausted, and but few new ones are being discovered, and oil being the cheapest light that can be produced the demand for it has increased with the hard times.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

IMPORTANT TO WOMEN.

Two Lady Dr. Emmet Pads, Fashioned and Domestic Matters.

A number of women in New York are working as architects with architects. The first two to set up in business for themselves are Miss Mary Nevay Gannon and Miss Alice J. Hands. These two young women are graduates of Mrs. Dunlop Hopkins' school of applied design. They are women competitors, they were successful in drawing the plans for the new hospital recently built in San Francisco. They also entered the competition for the Woman's building at the World's Exposition. Their plans got a good place. They have recently solved the permanent house problem by drawing the plans for a model tenement. The plans have been accepted, and 15 model tenements are to be erected by a public landowner who wishes his identity unknown. The sanitary investigating committee has asked Miss Gannon and Miss Hands to become the only women members. At present these two promising young women are at work on the plans for a model hotel for women to be built shortly.

In a number of recent photographs of the Countess Castellani, nee Miss Anna Gould, the favorite pose, judging from its frequent recurrence, was standing with one hand resting on her hip. This pose as well as sitting with the legs crossed is at present the vogue among misbegotten photographers to get what they mistakenly suppose to be an artistic effect. Women before the camera should remember that Countesses go down to posterity not as specimens of the photographer's skill, but as representations of themselves, and in reality refined and cultivated society to stand with one's hands on one's hips or sit with crossed legs is today as much the prerogative of the billingsgate fishwives as it was in our grandmothers' time.

The chafing dish is an indispensable factor to the comfort of every well regulated household. It is wonderful how admirably this simple dish adapts itself to the exigencies of every occasion. Oysters are never so good as when served from a chafing dish. And a lobster a la Newberg (so say epicures) only has the proper flavor when prepared in this way. To avoid confusion, when guests are expected, a few things should be prepared beforehand. The butter should be measured and placed on a dainty plate. Eggs should be whipped, cream measured, salt, pepper, sauces, catchups and wine near by, as well as spoons of various sizes for measuring and stirring, the lamp filled and matches handy. If rabbit is on the menu, have the cheese grated; if lobster a la Newberg, have the lobster cut in pieces. With all preliminaries arranged and materials at hand, tempting dishes can be easily prepared, the hostess gracefully presiding as goddess of the chafing dish.

The "bath bun" (so say authorities on the subject) is to be the correct style of arranging the hair during the present spring and summer. It suggests a waterfall at the back of the head and is very English and very hideous. Miss Olga Netherole, the English actress; Mrs. Langtry and Miss Cissy Fitzgerald are among the well known women of the stage who have already adopted the fashion. It is made by fastening the hair as tightly as if beginning a French twist, very low down to the neck. Next divide the hair into two parts. Take the upper part and form it into the figure 8. Arrange the under strand in the same way, building one coil almost over the other. Place the hands top and bottom of the knot, pushing it out in the center.

A new way to prepare eggs is timely at this season when eggs are plentiful and cheap. Break the eggs into a bowl, yolks and whites together, beating thoroughly. Add a teaspoonful of cream to each egg. Season with salt and pepper. Have ready on the fire a saucepan of melted butter. Do not cook over too hot a fire. Pour in the eggs, stirring and scraping from the bottom of the saucepan without ceasing until the preparation is as smooth as butter. Remove from the fire, continuing to stir for a few moments. Serve on hot buttered toast, garnished with parsley.

A perfect neck is not often seen. The shoulders may be round and plump and the skin white and fine, yet ugly hollows and distinct shadows of the collar bone spoil the contour. Let any woman with such a neck try the following gymnastics 15 minutes night and morning for a month: Push the arms out straight in the front of the body four times, then the same movement with the arms up in the air, next from the sides and finally backward, always with the shoulders thrown back, the head erect and the chin well in. Massage with cream butter is an excellent thing to make the neck and shoulders fat and smooth. Singing lessons often improve the throat as much as the voice itself. A perfectly shaped arm is often unsightly because of a heavy roughness on the back. This is the result of bad circulation and can positively be cured by a daily vigorous rubbing with a flesh-brush.

The term well groomed has become almost a cliché when applied to women as to horses and means practically the same thing. To be well dressed, well gloved and well shod is a necessity, a commonplace, and does not constitute being well groomed. The woman who really deserves the epithet well groomed must have hands that show the manicure's care, feet that show the attention of a pedicurist and hair that in every sense is a crowning glory. The devices of hot irons and crimping pins are no longer employed. They are the work of an ordinary hairdresser. The well groomed woman knows that a natural softness and wave to her hair can only be acquired by constant care and brushing. A bath every day is likewise essential. All this, it must be admitted, leaves very little time for much else in the day, but this is what constitutes being a well groomed woman. LAURA OLIVIA BOOTH.

CITY PLAGUED WITH EELS.

In New London the Water Supply Is Filled With Them.

Early in the forenoon one day lately all the electric street cars which had been whizzing about the town of New London suddenly ceased to go, and for a time no one was able to discover what was the matter.

The precise facts in the case were that a thundering big eel four feet long, perhaps, and two or three inches thick, had wriggled out of the supply pond of the works into the water main, thence crawled along into the small service pipe and had got into a tight dx in that tube not many feet away from the boiler that makes the dynamometer. Eels, though supple and agile, are not suitable to grind up into steam; hence the sudden arrest of circulation in the electric system of New London. The lake from which New London gets its water is five or six miles away among the hills to the north, so it is evident the eel journeyed all that way through mains and service pipes bent on his mischievous errand to tie up the electric car lines of the city.

"Such another plague of eels was never known as that which afflicts New Londoners this season," said one resentful but somewhat resigned citizen. "Never was anything like it. A man would think that Kononoe lake was mixed up in about equal parts of eels and wriggles, with some water. Why, we have eels on tap all the time; have 'em for breakfast, dinner and supper. And then it's the uncertainty about it all that is driving us all to drink—strong drink, I mean. Why, you can turn your water faucet any time, day or night, and it's just about even, better whether you get eels or water, or both. You'll tip eels anyhow, sooner or later."

"Once in a great while you get fish, other kinds, such as shiners or dace, and now and then a fair sized perch, mostly all small ones, but for a steady thing it's eels. Of course when the fish and eels are sizable ones, why, you can cook 'em for supper and so get even with the water department, but then it's not exactly pleasant to do your fishing in that way. Let a man get up in the night, for instance, and go to his faucet in the dark for a drink, and you can judge for yourself how unpleasant it is not to be certain whether it's water or eels he's drinking. Blast the things! I got one almost swallowed myself the other night—it was a small one, though—before I discovered my mistake. It's a horrible situation."—New York Sun.

WANTED "CONJURE BONES."

Colored Ghouls Desecrate a Grave to Get Bones For Dice.

Several weeks ago it was announced that the grave in which Sarah Barlow, an old negroess, was buried two years ago at Post Oak Church, Miss., had been desecrated. Recent developments have led to the arrest of three young colored men for the crime.

It turns out that these ghouls were not after money or hidden treasure, but that they were longing after "conjure bones," or bones out of which to manufacture dice, which are currently reported among a certain class of ignorant negro "crap shooters" as invaluable. The story goes that when they dug into the grave and found the corpse in such a good state of preservation, notwithstanding it had been buried nearly two years, they took fright and ran away.

The case has attracted considerable attention on account of its novelty. It is possibly the first one of its kind ever tried in the state. The colored population are manifesting no little interest in the affair, as most of them have a mortal dread of "conjure bones" or anything pertaining to the "black art."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

CRACKED ON A WAGER

HOW SAFE BREAKING KEEPS PACE WITH SAFE MAKING.

William A. Pankerton and Well Known Bank Officials Spectators at an Interesting Performance—Hammer, Battery, Dismantling Caps and Nitroglycerin Did It.

Three men blew open a safe in broad daylight at Pullman a few days ago and escaped arrest. The job was done in the presence of 35 or 40 well known men, including William A. Pankerton, but instead of lodging a complaint with the police or even attempting to stop the performance they heartily applauded its successful termination.

The job was a practical demonstration by a number of new style safes that the best of certain old style forms are not burglar proof. The safe expert, upon whom came from a bank at Ellingham, Ill., and was the subject of an interesting wager.

The banker said, he could now defy the thieves who have on more than one occasion made rich hauls in that locality. This was laughed at by the new style safe man, who offered to pay the bank $10 a minute for all the time it took him to open the safe by the latest methods of scientific burglars. As the estimated time was 20 minutes the banker didn't like to sacrifice a $1,500 safe for $300 and declined the offer.

This drew out another—that the bank should buy a new style safe and turn over the old one in part payment, the value of the latter to be fixed by the time it took to open it. If the job were done in three hours or less, the bank was to get $750. If one minute more than three hours was spent in the task, the price would be $1,500. This satisfied the banker, and the suspected safe was sent to an experimental station at Pullman.

In the safe blowing case in question a small hammer, an electric battery, a few detonating caps and a ten ounce vial of nitroglycerin did the work.

The cashier of the Ellingham bank first examined the seals and satisfied himself the safe had not been tampered with, and then the fun began. When the head safe blower, a deacon looking young man who unhesitatingly admitted he had been in the business for 15 years, drew the bottle of nitroglycerin from his pocket and carelessly tossed it on the desk, most of the guests made a break for the door. But this same young man coolly said nitroglycerin never went off without cause. He didn't mean it, but the harmless film made the men feel easier, and they watched the subsequent proceedings with much interest.

"If I desired merely to open this safe I would pour half of this fluid into it and touch it off," said the demonstrator as he again reached for the nitroglycerin. "But I don't want to smash it into smithereens. What I am after is to show the faculty style of construction by stripping the plates apart one by one without using tools or making any perceptible noise. This will take considerably longer than the mere blowing open of the safe would, but I am confident the work will be done inside of three hours."

The chief safe blower hit the door of the safe two or three smart blows with the hammer and a chunk of the metal was broken off. Into this crevice a teaspoonful or perhaps a little more of the nitroglycerin was poured.

Despite the assertion of the maker that the safe was impervious to explosives in any form, the liquid fast disappeared in the crack. Then a detonating cap was stuck over the crevice with a little putty, the electric wires were attached, somebody pushed the button, and there was a report like that of a small cannon.

The first result was not satisfying to the spectators. They saw no signs of the attack, but the demonstrator smiled and said the next charge would start something, and it did. Twenty-five charges of a teaspoonful or so each were used, and all the plates of the big screw door were stripped off one by one.

Some of the plates were warped and broken and all the screws which held them together were snapped off like cotton threads, many of them being blown into minute particles. The job was done in just two hours and fifty-seven minutes, and all of the spectators so certified.—Chicago Tribune.

How a British Officer Spent His Leave.

As an indication of the eagerness which has been shown to take part in the Chitral campaign and to explore the almost unknown country through which the expedition is to advance the following incident may be given: A distinguished officer, whose regiment was not upon the list for the Chitral expedition, applied for a short leave of absence. He then went to see the commandant of another regiment more fortunate than his own and obtained his sanction to serve in the ranks of his regiment. He made the necessary change in uniform, took his share of the toilet, some marches and hard camping and fought with all a volunteer's enthusiasm through the action in the Malakand pass. He staid with the brigade until the summit of the pass was reached, and then hurried back to Peshawar, his leave then being on the point of expiration.—Pall Mall Gazette.

To Picture Vessels on the Stage.

An improvement has been designed to facilitate the representation on the stage of a vessel at sea, imitating its rocking and swaying motion. It provides for overlaying the regular stage with a false stage, hinged at its forward edge. By a clever mechanical contrivance the rear portion can be raised and lowered and given more or less lateral movement.—Philadelphia Ledger.

WOMAN'S WORLD IN PARAGRAPHS.

The New Woman Riding Into Freedom on the Bicycle.

I notice that one of the most select, high priced and swell dry goods houses in New York city advertises ladies' bloomers, knickerbockers, tights, sweaters and bicycle suits for sale at "advantageous prices." It also informs the new woman that she can find in the same establishment costumes specially adapted for all athletic purposes. When one of the most fashionable dry goods stores in New York city advertises ladies' bloomers and knickerbockers for sale, faith! the new woman is here. And she rode into liberty on a bicycle. I have tried many forms of outdoor exercise and recreation, and I find the most exhilarating of all to be bicycle riding. Even swimming, my fad for years, is hardly equal to it. Dr. W. C. Latimer, a Brooklyn physician, read a paper before the New York State Homeopathic society on the "Bicycle in its Relation to Diseases of Women." He found patients coming to him and asking him whether it was healthful for women to learn bicycle riding. He made a careful investigation, and the result is an unqualified verdict for the cycle. He mentions bloodlessness or anemia and dyspepsia as two of the ailments in which this exercise proved a blessing, though he confesses it would be equally a curse if the exercise were overdone. He recommends women at once to abandon the skirt and the heavy drop frame wheel, as too great a tax to be borne. To get the best results, a woman rider should go into knickerbockers or bloomers and ride the full diamond frame wheel, such as men use. The newest wheels for women, however, are a sort of compromise between the diamond frame wheel and the aluminoid bent beam gas pipe concern which some of the cycle companies still persist in foisting upon the public as the best and the lightest wheel that can be made for women. A woman's wheel should in no case weigh an ounce over 24 pounds. Some of the best and newest ones weigh less than that. Finally, the doctor says: "We have yet to see the woman who, once having donned the bloomer and ridden a full diamond wheel, ever returned to the skirt and drop frame." The skirt acts as a funnel, conveying dangerous currents of air over the woman's body.

Never say that women are one another's enemies or that you like men better than you do women, or you will show yourself old fashioned and years behind the times.

The new woman lives all mankind; but, best of all, she loves her own sex.

Some of the best and most convincing documents I have ever read on the woman question are those issued by the New York State Woman Suffrage association. The association has prepared a masterly history of the recent suffrage amendment campaign in New York which will be a help wherever women are struggling to gain liberty and justice. All the arguments that could be made for freedom for the human race are condensed in that able report. The state committee have placed the report on sale in pamphlet form, 25 cents the single copy, five copies for $1. The association's corresponding secretary, Mrs. Isabel Howland of Sherwood, N. Y., has charge of the matter. The proceeds of sales will be devoted to paying for printing documents and otherwise furthering the work in New York. As to the women who are doing the work, they do it without pay and find themselves. No women were ever more unselfishly devoted to a principle than they are.

It was a most pleasant scene when, at a meeting at the residence of Mrs. Esther Herrmann, in New York city, of friends of Lillie Devereux Blake, that distinguished lady received a pretty little purse, yellow, the color of light, and the woman suffrage color, containing $600. Her friends had contributed the money as a little surprise to her, and it will go to help pay for a cottage home in Florida which she hopes to have.

Miss Mary Proctor, daughter of the astronomer, is lecturing very successfully in the field occupied by her great father. One of her lectures is called "Giant Sun and His Children." Another she gives is her father's lecture on "Other Worlds Than Ours." Miss Proctor is a bright, gentle little lady and wins all hearts wherever she goes. Her head is full of knowledge all the same, and she is an enthusiast on her subject.

Miss Mary V. Steele of Somerville, N. Y., is the first woman to be elected commissioner of deeds in that state.

"Woman suffrage will win because woman suffrage is right," says the New York Recorder in large letters in the corner of its first page. Right you are, brother.

For the past five years Miss Julia Hutchins Farwell has been principal of the Episcopal Church school of St. Mary's, at Garden City, L. I. Miss Farwell is an advocate and exponent of the best type of new woman and teaches her girls to be the same. Besides the solid and broad education she planned for the young ladies she cared especially for their lithe and beautiful bodies, believing that physical training is at least as important as that of the mind. Miss Farwell will resign her place at the end of the present school year and go to Europe. There are branches of study in which she will engage to prepare herself yet more thoroughly for her chosen life work.

From a New York paper next day after a high windstorm: "The women had a hard time of it. Their skirts gave the gale a purchase, and they slid along till a lamppost or some other obstacle stopped them. There were a good many embarrassing situations." But bloomers and knickerbockers are not modest! Oh, boy!

Dehorn Your Cattle.

I will go to any place where there are six or more cattle to dehorn. I do the work with the Lightning Dehorner. Can dehorn any cow in three seconds. The knife makes a clean, smooth cut, does not crush nor break the horn, as the clippers do. It is the only humane way to dehorn. Does not punish the animal like the saw, and the wound gets well as quick again as that made by the saw. For further information, call on G. A. PRYTON, Stanford, Ky.

FIRST NATIONAL BANK

OF STANFORD, KY.
Capital Stock.....$200,000
Surplus.....21,300

Attention of the public is invited to the fact that this is the only National Bank in Stanford. Under the provisions of the National Bank Act, depositors are secured not only by the capital stock, but by the stockholders' liability for an amount equal to the stock, so that depositors of this institution are secured by a fund of $400,000. Five sworn statements of the condition of the bank are made each year to the United States government and its assets are examined at stated times by government agents, thus securing additions and perfect safety to depositors.

This institution, originally established as the Deposit Bank of Stanford in 1858, then re-organized as the National Bank of Stanford in 1863 and again re-organized as the First National Bank of Stanford in 1893, has had practically an uninterrupted existence of 52 years. It is better supplied now with facilities for transacting business promptly and liberally than ever before in its long and honorable career. Accounts of corporations, educators, firms and individuals respectfully solicited.

The Directory of this Bank is composed of:
Foreman Reed, Lincoln county;
S. T. Harris, Lincoln;
J. H. Collier, Lincoln;
J. W. Hayden, Stanford;
S. H. Baughman, Lincoln;
J. S. Hocker, Stanford;
W. A. Tribble, Stanford;

A. A. McKinney, Asst. Cashier

Farmers Bank & Trust Co

OF STANFORD, KY.
Is now fully organized and ready for business with Paid up Capital of - - $200,000.
Surplus, - - - 2,000.

SUCCESSOR TO THE LINCOLN NATIONAL BANK OF STANFORD.

Now closing up with the same assets and under the same management.
By provisions of its charter, depositors are as fully protected as are depositors in National Banks, its shareholders being held individually liable to the extent of the amount of their stock therein at the par value thereof, in addition to the amount invested in such shares. It may act as executor, administrator, trustee, &c., as fully as an individual.

To those who entrusted their business to us while managing the Lincoln National Bank of Stanford, we here tender our many thanks and trust they will continue to transact their business with us, offering as a guarantee for prompt attention to same, our twenty years' experience in banking and as liberal accommodations as are consistent with sound banking.

D

It is said that the friends of Col. Breckinridge, who have it in for Senator Blackburn and will oppose him almost to a man, are having printed at Lexington a pamphlet showing that of the 13 bills introduced in Congress by the Senator 12 were for the benefit of relatives, and the other for the Lexington and Eastern railway. Senator Blackburn hasn't done much in Congress that's a fact, except to draw his salary. He is a clever man and a popular one, but statesmanship is an unknown quantity to the "cave of winds." He can present about as few claims for endorsement as any man we know of and if it were otherwise, his interview on the silver question ought to shelve him forever. The way our great and good Simon Bolivar Buckner ripe him up the back for his populist views is a caution, though he does not call his name. He ridicules the dogma enunciated by Senator Blackburn that the stamp of the government gives a coin its only value and proves by reference to the $50 octagon gold piece of California, which was not a coin of the United States and had no stamp of the government, that the reverse is true. That piece of coin has always passed for its full value of $50 and will as long as it is in existence. The more one studies the interview of Gov. Buckner, the more he is impressed with the correctness of his views on sound money and the prouder they are of a man, who while not saying it in the words of Patrick Henry, yet plainly intimates that he had rather be right than hold any office.

JOHN R. McLEAN can now speak of his "two newspapers both daily" as did the late John W. Forney, of Philadelphia. He has bought of Mr. Pulitzer, the New York Morning Journal and made Mr. McBride, the Washington correspondent of his other paper, the Cincinnati Enquirer, managing editor. Mr. McLean proposes to make the journal an aggressive morning democratic paper, and he also proposes to make so-called democratic papers of New York show their hands. He has long desired to be a power in New York City politics, and at last his opportunity has presented itself. It is to be hoped he will make his new paper a more decent sheet than the Cincinnati publication and not devote its columns to abuse of the administration.

Though Gov. Brown had Col. Scott to assist in the prosecution of Fulton Gordon and there were promises of a big sensation involving a Frankfort man, who it was claimed gave Gordon the clew, there was nothing remarkable in the trial, except that Gordon fainted twice. The defense offered no testimony and a motion of dismissal was made and argued at 11 o'clock yesterday. The defense agreed to let Gordon be held for manslaughter, but the prosecution refused to permit it.

As we go to press a dispatch from Louisville says that Judge Thompson, after hearing the argument discharged Gordon, holding that he was justifiable, a very righteous decision, all things considered.

Paizs fighting will soon be a thing of the past. Florida and Louisiana, which have both winked at the manly sport, have declared against it. The former through its Legislature and the latter through its supreme court, which rules that such exhibitions as it has been the custom to give in New Orleans are as much prize fights as though they were fought with naked hands, and therefore in violation of law. Oklahoma is about the only place, which legalizes and invites such sports and it will change the order of things when the people get civilized.

By the right of might and in the same way the republicans in Congress will seat contestants of their own party, Gov. Turney was re-invested governor of Tennessee Wednesday. The republican members of the Legislature would not attend, but instead went to Chattanooga where they were banquipped by the man who was elected on the face of the returns, and afterwards went through a mock inauguration of him. The democrats of Tennessee have made a mistake, if not committed a crime, and they will rue it yet, we very much fear.

SENATOR BLACKBURN continues to deaden over into the enemy's country. All his speeches so far have been in Gov. McCreary's district and to-morrow afternoon at Harrodsburg he will hit him another lick. The Senator does not know when he is well off, and is evidently monkeying with dynamite. McCreary has his old district solid.

CAN'T the newspaper reporters give us a rest with reference to Col. Jack Chin? We love to hear occasionally the words of wisdom that fall from this statesman's lips, but too much of a good thing is too much of a good thing and cloy on one's stomach.

—Charles A. Morganfield, the Aquila Creek train robber, has begun his 18-year term in the Virginia penitentiary.

THERE was not a full attendance of the county committee yesterday to consider the Legislative race, but a majority of those present were decidedly of the opinion that the precinct conventions should send their delegates to the county convention uninstructed. Then they can consider the question from every standpoint and nominate the most available man—one who can win. The precinct conventions will be held to-morrow afternoon and we trust will take this sensible view of the matter.

The Winchester Sun says that Wood Dunlap is one of Kentucky's coming men. Wood won't think this much of a compliment. He is pretty well satisfied that he "has already come."

HURRAH for Jim Baughman! He has ordered the mill whistle to stop blowing for sun time and fallen in with the new order of things. We knew he would do it, when a certain pretty young lady told him she did not wish to be awakened from her morning nap at 5:40.

IT is rather a remarkable fact that of the five suicides that have occurred here in the last several years, four of them left letters to the editor of the INTERIOR JOURNAL explaining the cause of their acts. The other three were Arch Snow, Mr. Phillips and old man Munday.

ATTENTION is called to the advertisement of the Nashville, Tenn., College For Young Ladies, an institution second to none in the South, and especially desirable to parents in this section, where the lady principal, Mrs. S. C. Trueheart, is so favorably known. Write to Rev. Geo. W. F. Price for catalogue.

LINNETTA SPRINGS.—Capt. Thos. The captain and his splendid wife have given this pleasant resort an excellent name with the Summer loiterers and they will be glad to know that they will be in charge again.

WONDERFUL AIR CHURN.—The attention of buttermakers and others who wish to handle the greatest seller on earth is called to this churn. The salesman churned at the Myers House Saturday and get butter in two minutes. Another exhibition Saturday. On Monday the exhibition will be in front of the court-house. The company wants two good men in this county.

THE case of A. A. Bastin against the Frankfort Manufacturing Co., which occupied a portion of two days in Judge Davison's court, resulted in a hung jury. Mr. Bastin sued the above company for $98 for spokes he had delivered at the depot in Frankfort, but the company refused to accept them on the ground that they were not delivered at the time specified in the verbal contract and that they were not the kind contracted for. The jury stood three for Bastin and three for the company.

WORMS.—Mr. W. P. Grimes says an army of worms, with the appearance of cut worms, charged upon a meadow of his and mowed it clean. To stop their progress he dragged a log over them, but found the best way to destroy them was to plow a furrow just ahead of the column. This he did and yesterday morning the worms were in it from one to three inches deep. He then filled the furrow with straw and burned them. Took Hubble also tells us that his fields have been similarly attacked.

WILL LEE, colored, was placed in jail Wednesday. He was tried before Judge Davison a few weeks ago on the charge of stealing corn from Perry Ballard and held over till circuit court in the sum of $100. His father gave Attorney W. S. Burch a mortgage on his three horses and that gentleman went the boy's security. Mr. Burch found out on further investigation that two of the horses had already been mortgaged, but the mortgage had not been recorded until after the bond was made, and fearing that he would have the bag to hold had the boy placed in jail.

THE body of Supt. McClary was hardly cold before the rush of those who want his place began, and there are applicants without number. The law provides that the county judge shall appoint after the examination of the applicant in conjunction with the county clerk and another man to be designated by the judge, this examination to be reduced to writing and forwarded to a board at Frankfort for acceptance or rejection. Of course as the local board is republican, the appointee, if one qualified can be found, will be a republican. Judge Davison says that out of respect for the deceased, he will take no action for several days. Among the applicants are Miss Kate Bogie, who formerly held the office, and Miss Kate Blain, John Herman and Charles H. Holmes.

SUICIDE!

Mayor Hocker Takes His Own Life.

Giving as the Cause Domestic Troubles.

A Most Deliberate and Determined Act.

The startling announcement made Wednesday morning that Dr. S. G. Hocker, mayor of Stanford, had hung himself, was like a clap of thunder from a clear sky, but investigation showed it to be true. He was found by his cook in the smoke-house a little before 6 o'clock A. M. hanging by his neck to a small rope tied to a rafter and he had evidently jumped off a barrel. Dr. O'Bannon, who lives just across the street, was hastily summoned and finding life still remaining did all he could to resuscitate him, but without avail. In his pocket were found letters addressed to his wife, his daughter, Miss Mary, and the following:

STANFORD, KY., May 6th, 1895.

As there will probably be a good deal of comment on my death, I will say to you and you can publish it if you see proper, that the cause of it is entirely on account of domestic troubles that I have silently endured for a long time. I loved my family dearly and tried by every means I knew how to live in peace and harmony, but failing I can stand it no longer.

While I have enemies as you know, who have set up a regular system of persecution on account of my conscientious views on some subjects that I had the manliness to avow and act out, these have given me no trouble and I would like to have lived to have vindicated myself in the minds of all just thinking people. S. G. HOCKER.

The doctor was in his drug store till a late hour Tuesday night engaged in writing. He told one or two parties that he was going away and also told his wife the same. He did not go home and Mrs. Hocker feeling solicitous about him went to several neighbors' houses to look for him.

Where he spent the night is not known, but the horror of it to him must have passed all imagination. It was one of the most determined attempts at taking one's own life that ever came under our observation. He had evidently mistaken the length of the fall or the stretch of the rope, and fell so that his feet could easily touch the floor. The neck was not broken and death ensued by slow strangulation. One hand was against the door knob, while the feet had to be drawn up to keep them from the floor.

Dr. Hocker left a letter in the post-office for his son, Jesse T. Hocker, in which he gave him a history of his family troubles, dating back six years. As there was much in it of a private nature, the son very properly declined to give it publicity. Mr. Hocker is the only son by the first marriage, his mother being a daughter of the late Marcus Helm. The doctor's last wife was Miss Lizzie Fair and they had two children, a girl and a boy, the former nearly grown.

As upon everything else, Dr. Hocker had very decided views on prohibition and the persecution referred to has reference to the various attempts to indict him for violation of the law, which were successful in two or more instances. His domestic troubles, which are believed to have been largely imaginary, grew out of money matters. When he married his second wife she had several thousands of dollars, which the doctor re-invested, some of it unsuccessfully. The loss annoyed his wife and the trouble began about six years ago. We learn, however, that the doctor's estate is fully able to pay her all he owes her and still have considerable money left.

Deceased was a member of the Presbyterian church, but for a long time he has taken no interest in church affairs and very much opposed his children going into the Baptist church with their mother. The day before his death he said to Mr. T. D. Raney that he had lost confidence in mankind, a state of feeling sufficient to make most anybody want to shuffle off his mortal coil.

Relatives and friends of Mrs. Hocker deny in toto that there was any serious trouble between them, at least so far as she was concerned. She always treated him with deference and they are as surprised as any one at his statement of domestic infelicity.

The law regards suicide as proof of insanity, though the doctor showed no outward signs of it. He inherited the suicidal mania, however, from his grandfather Hocker, who took his own life. The last time we talked with the doctor, he was in an apparently cheerful frame of mind and gave no evidence of the conflict within him. He was a man of iron firmness and courage and the last one that those who knew his points, would suspect of suicide.

The remains were taken to Hustonville yesterday and buried by the Masons, of which order he had long been a member.

By special request of the family, County Attorney J. B. Paxton agreed not to order an inquest; besides there was no necessity for it, as the deceased himself had cleared up whatever of mystery might have been connected with his death.

DEATH'S DOINGS.

McCLARY.—On the 25th of April, Mr. Wm. Franklin McClary wrote a little placard with these words "At Home Sick," and tacked it on his office door. It was the last seen of him up town, for his disease, inflammatory rheumatism, developed fast and reaching his heart a few days before his death the end soon came and he expired at 10 P. M. on the 6th. There were few better and more useful men than Frank McClary and his death creates the most profound sorrow. A Christian, a gentleman and a man of fine executive ability, he acted well his part, there all the honor lies, and whether as citizen, church member or public officer, he did his duty nobly and well and he goes to his reward not only with the plaudits of men, but of Him who has promised to give eternal life to them, who are finally faithful.

Mr. McClary was the oldest child of Joseph and Rebecca McClary and was born April 30th, 1848. He obtained a good, common school education and was for many years a teacher. He took great interest in educational affairs and in 1890 when he offered for school superintendent, the democracy of which party he was an unswerving member, gave him the nomination and saw that he was elected. He performed the duties so well that he was endorsed by a second nomination and election and was serving his second term, when death cut short his useful career. He was very popular with all the teachers and they will miss him sadly.

At the age of 22 Mr. McClary joined the Baptist church and if it ever had a more faithful member the fact does not appear. On the 17th of December 1872, he was united in marriage to Miss Annie E. Withers, and six children were born to them, four of whom are living and with the loving wife are left to mourn their best of earthly friends. May God bless them and temper the blow to their capacity to bear it.

It can be truly said of the deceased that whatever his hands found to do that he did with all his might, and his membership in the order of Odd Fellows was characterized by the same enthusiastic fidelity as he manifested in everything he did. The order took charge of his remains Wednesday and a very large procession of the members marched with them to the grave and consigned them to the earth with its impressive ceremonies, while hundreds of citizens and friends looked on in unaffected sorrow. The court-house, the superintendent's office and the Odd Fellows building were draped in mourning and a general feeling of sadness and regret seemed to pervade the community. A good man has fallen. Earth loses and heaven gains.

There was no funeral sermon but Revs. W. E. Ellis and A. V. Sizemore conducted appropriate services at the grave and many an eye bedimmed with tears as the sod hid from view all that is mortal of one who in every station proved him, self that noblest work of God—an honest man.

In addition to the sympathy felt for the wife and children, the hearts of all true men and women are touched by the sorrows that have darkened the last days of the old father who in a little over a month has been called to give up the wife, who for 51 years had stood by his side, in pleasant and in stormy weather, and his first born. As he stood at the grave and wrung his hands in mute agony of spirit, he presented, a spectacle that would have moved a heart of stone. He does not sorrow as those without hope, however, for it will be but a short time till he will meet his loved ones, who will be waiting and watching for him.

Mrs. John B. Dickerson died suddenly Wednesday. She was sitting at the table eating dinner, when she grew faint and nearly fell to the floor. On being assisted to a bed she gasped for breath a few times and all was over. Heart failure and lung trouble were pronounced by the doctors the cause of her death. Deceased was Miss Sarah Hughes and she was a little over 60 years old. Her husband, now, in his 80th year, and one child, Dr. J. W. Dickerson, survive her, and they are cast down with grief at their loss. Mrs. Dickerson was a member of the Christian church and is highly spoken of by all who knew her as a most estimable woman. The burial was in Buffalo Cemetery yesterday afternoon, after a short service at the grave by Rev. W. E. Ellis.

I. MACK BRUCE will be in the field this year and will pay as much for your wool as anybody. He will receive and grade his wool himself at the depot.

DANVILLE'S tax rate remains at 60 cents, notwithstanding the $70,000 voted to build the water works, says the Advocate. Stanford people have to pay 75 cts.

W. C. WALTON,

STORIES OF THE DAY.

Had No Escape, So He Just Let Him Eat Him Up.

"Speaking of accidents," said the Boston man, "I had a most singular one happen to me upon the East Tennessee road two weeks ago. I was in the rear sleeper coming down the mountain when it jumped the track and went down over a cliff 85 feet into the bed of a creek."

Silence reigned for the space of five seconds, till a tall, quiet gentleman of the name of Courtney leaned over to the Boston man and mildly inquired, "Did you say 85 feet?"

"Yes," said the man from Boston. "Is that list?" said Mr. Courtney. "No! It is not list," thundered the Boston man. "The car went down 85 feet and a little girl had her arm broken, although I did not get hurt myself."

"My dear sir," said Courtney, "I would not want you to think for a moment that I doubted your word, and speaking of the mountains reminds me of an adventure I had about five years ago up in the Rockies. There was a party of us out there from Chicago hunting and fishing. We were camped on a trout stream away up in the Ute pass, and as I would rather fish than log a gun about all day I made daily trips up the stream. One day I went much farther than ever before, and finally came to a pool that lay between two high rocks. To reach it I had to climb up the mountain side and out on a shelf of rock that overhung the pool 20 feet below. I dropped my fly and as fast as it struck the water I had a speckled beauty on the end of my line. But all at once I heard a scratching on the rock behind me, and on looking around I saw a big shaggy bear coming for me with her mouth wide open. There I was, without gun, pistol or even a penknife to defend myself with, and sure death if I jumped into the stream."

"What did you do?" cried the Boston man in great excitement.

"Do? What could I do? I just sat there and let the blanked thing eat me up."

In the rear that followed the Boston man took no part. He looked across at Courtney's placid face, in which there was not the shadow of a smile. Then he laid his napkin on the table and sneaked out of the room.—Chicago Times Herald.

A Mean Trick.
 It was the meanest trick ever played on the streets of New Orleans. There was no humor in it, no fun. Simply a piece of asinine such as men of a very ordinary and groveling habit of mind love to indulge in.

These were the circumstances: It was high noon on Canal street, and all the city was out in gala attire. Through the midst of the crowd that thronged along Canal street passed the tall and proud form of one of New Orleans' most distinguished beaux. With his eyes on the passing show, the beau took no notice of who walked by his side.

Now, it just so happened that a party of darkies were out for a promenade on Canal street. They were female darkies, country female darkies, gaudily attired in red and blue, with fat, savage faces, black as the inside of a crow. It further just so happened that these darkies in making their way along Canal street walked immediately by the side of the well known and popular beau. Of course he didn't notice it, or if he did notice it he was contemptuously unimpressed. It was out of the question that any one should think he was walking with the country negroes dressed in red and blue.

Then the mean man came along and perpetrated the mean trick. It was a very simple trick, a very grave trick, and didn't take a half second to execute. As the mean man approached the well known beau he glanced at him and then glanced at the array of darkies. Then he smiled graciously and took off his hat ceremoniously. With the spontaneous good breeding of a true, well known and popular beau, the well known and popular beau thus saluted returned the salute, and a half dozen ladies who were passing by at the time looked at him wonderingly and then feigned to see something the other way.

It was really a very mean trick, and, as has been intimated, utterly without humor. At all events, that's what the well known and popular beau most emphatically declares.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Her Anticlove Position.
 Mrs. Dr. Annie Lemmon Griffin has introduced a new act at the Muncie theater that is being applauded all over the city.

Thursday night at a show she was one of a small theater party of women, and she occupied seat No. 4 from the aisle. The next two seats were occupied by well dressed but very nervy young men. As soon as the curtain dropped after the first act the two men requested that the ladies arise and let them out.

Mrs. Griffin politely informed them that she would not get up for them. Both remained standing and finally appealed to the house policeman, who called Manager Wysox. He stated that the seat occupied by the woman belonged to her, and she could do as she liked. Finally the men were compelled to sit down, and the house fairly shook with applause made by the audience, who had become acquainted with the trouble.

Mrs. Griffin will be given a medal by other Muncie women who are calling in person and extending their congratulations.—Indianapolis Journal.

Both Will Be Scarce.
 If the bicycle craze continues unabated for a few years more, one of the attractions of the twentieth century dime museum will be the man who never rode a wheel.—Omaha Bee.

No, the man who never tried to ride one.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Making It Easier to Lose.
 In a new poker deck the number of cards is to be increased to 60. Can't a man lose enough money with the old deck?—New York World.

FIFTY CARAT DIAMOND.

It Was In a Mass of Plumbago and Unfortunately Was Ruined.

Shipments of plumbago are frequently received at Newburg from the island of Ceylon, in which times of gold are found. Mr. Tillinghast, the superintendent, said the other day that he had found a diamond, about 60 carats in weight, which had been in a pile of plumbago.

Unfortunately the diamond was not found until after it had gone through a furnace which was heated to 1,000 degrees. The precious stone had been cracked in pieces and filled with flaws by the intense heat. The largest piece is the size of a hazelnut and so badly cracked as to be of use only as chips.

The stone, Mr. Tillinghast says, was originally as large as a walnut.

The balance of the lot of plumbago in which the stone was found is being examined before it goes into the furnace.—New York Herald.

Arrested by a Dog.
 Bill, a shepherd dog belonging to Sheriff Sherry of Muncie, Ind., executed a feat recently that was wonderful. A couple of vagrants in jail broke away as a crowd was being taken to the workhouse. Sherry ran after one of them. The officer was surprised when a policeman marched the other one back soon afterward. The dog had seen his master chase one of the men, and he took after the other, who ran in an opposite direction. In the courthouse yard the dog jumped at the man's throat, finally setting his teeth in the prisoner's coat and vest collar, pulling him down and holding him. A crowd ran to the man's rescue, thinking a mad dog had him, but a policeman recognized Bill and took the runaway back to jail. Bill will have a collar presented to him inscribed with an account of his exploit.—Chicago Tribune.

Only Fierce For His Country.
 Guillermo Moncada, one of the Cuban insurgent leaders, said to be now dead, was a negro, black as coal, of huge stature and vast strength. He is described as being as gentle as a woman in his ordinary disposition, and to gain mere private ends would not hurt a fly. It was only when fighting for Cuban independence that he became fierce and warlike.—Philadelphia Ledger.

A Spiritual Innovation.
 A rather remarkable marriage took place in this city yesterday. It is remarkable in that it took place at noon and not at high noon. As the observant reader must have noticed, all recent fashionable marriages, when they have taken place at any noon at all, have taken place at high noon.—San Francisco Record.
